ABOUT CRISTOPH

Christoph studied computer science and business administration at the Karlsruhe Institute of Technology. He cut his teeth as a developer and further enhanced his career by meeting requirements as an engineer/project lead in the fields of marketing resource management and customer relationship management. Soon after, he joined TeamViewer as a product owner. In this role, he helped bring to market several features within the TeamViewer software application which aids IT supports in their daily business. Since April 2016, he leads the Remote Support and Remote Access markets at TeamViewer.
