ABOUT ROB

Rob has worked for multiple years installing client/server software onsite across the country while also supporting clients both in person and remotely. He then transitioned to the product management arena where he started planning the future of the products and the direction of products. Rob also worked directly with all areas of the development teams as well as upper management to help facilitate progress on our roadmap and vision. He moved through different companies and then work in both the capacity of a project manager as well as a product manager, and at one point overseeing a PMO while still maintaining both PM roles. Rob has since moved in the direction of Product Management over the last 4 years and have been working on bringing new products to market. Rob also holds a Bachelor of Arts degree at the University of Pittsburgh.
