ABOUT CHRIS

Chris is a Director at PwC's Strategic Technologies practice, specializing in delivering transformational programs especially within the travel and transportation industry. He has more than sixteen years of experience in designing and mobilizing programs, delivery methodologies, assessments, and implementation of complex integrated solutions. As a certified ScrumMaster, he leads programs that leverage both on-shore and off-shore delivery models. With a technical architecture background and a delivery focus, Chris has delivered numerous large-scale system implementations and integrations. Chris also holds a BS in Computer Science from Cornell University.

WHAT OTHERS HAVE TO SAY

"Chris has strong fundamentals of object oriented design as well as best practice software delivery lifecycle processes. He is able to spearhead projects independently and provide leadership and direction to the client when they need it most. Chris is able to deliver high quality work that is bound to impress."

PERSONAL SLOGAN: "KEEP THE EASY STUFF TO FOCUS ON THE TOUGH STUFF."
