ABOUT KIMBERLY

Kimberly Reynolds has been involved in developing software for over twenty-five years. She started as a developer and then moved into a management role. She has extensive experience in mission critical software where she has been responsible for all phases of development (initial development, quality assurance, documentation, release management, and implementation). Kim participated in the Agile transformation while working for a major software corporation. She has been a certified ScrumMaster since 2009 and has managed numerous teams. Kim currently works at Ashley Furniture as a Program Manager and is responsible for execution of the top strategic initiatives that cross many divisions within the organization. Kim is passionate about spending time with her family and enjoys making memories with those she loves the most.
