ABOUT JOHN

John Huddleston started his career as a programmer at American Mining Insurance Company before he even graduated college. After graduating from Birmingham-Southern College with a MS degree in Computer Information Systems, he spent eight years with American Mining and eventually worked his way up to the position of IT Manager. Looking for a new professional adventure, John left American Mining to spend five months in Chicago for a special assignment on a large software project. At the conclusion of that project, he returned to Birmingham and took a Senior Consultant position with Forte Incorporated.

Then, after more than 10 years away, John was called to return to American Mining Insurance Company; this time as a Senior Vice President. Now as a SVP, John is leading his department through a complete Agile transformation that is spreading into other divisions of the company.

John's personal strengths include servant leadership, meeting management, process refinement, communication, and problem solving. He believes communication and transparency are the keys to the Agile revolution.

Outside of work, John is passionate about raising and training his seven Boykin Spaniels. He is an avid bird hunter and also competes in field trials with his pups.

PERSONAL SLOGAN: "LIFE MOVES PRETTY FAST.
IF YOU DON'T STOP AND LOOK AROUND ONCE IN A WHILE YOU COULD MISS IT."
