ABOUT GREG

Greg started his career in finance before transitioning to leading a marketing company. He then shifted to development and construction and landed in product development and management. Today, he runs all the key initiatives for Sears Holding Corp., including its transition, while working side-by-side the CEO. He has experience working across a multitude of specializations throughout his career. He understands product, project, and program management, finance, and technology. He is a leader and a decision-maker. He leads his team responsibly while encouraging competition, accountability, and hard work.
